DAVID MILLER

A Message from the Mayor

It gives me great pleasure to extend a warm welcome to everyone attending today's gala event hosted by Credit Canada.

Over the last week, Credit Canada in partnership with other sponsors and in association with a cross section of business partners, associates and educators, has pioneered the event, Credit Education Week Canada. This initiative raises awareness of the issues surrounding debt and credit problems and informs customers about the tools and resources available in helping them manage debt.

I applaud Credit Canada for this initiative as I believe it is a wonderful tool that can influence the way we handle financial expenditure as well as a great guideline and insight into handling debt. But more importantly, we are here at today's concluding gala dinner where the student winner of the national essay contest will be announced.

Education is not a privilege, it is a choice and the choices our young men and women make will impact their lives and ultimately their success. We as parents, leaders and educators must create conducive environments that will nurture the talents and skills within our young people and provide them with the tools necessary for them to strive for academic excellence and realize their dreams..

On behalf of Toronto City Council, I congratulate the scholarship recipient and wish you a future filled with great accomplishments and wonderful possibilities. To Credit Canada and everyone, please accept my best wishes for continued success.

Yours truly,
